

Human Trafficking in Oregon through a Legal Lens & Breaking Barriers for Survivors of Trafficking: Accessing Systems through Needs Assessment and Case Management

Join us for this two-part training for professionals working in the human services, health care, child welfare, education, mental health, and law enforcement fields on:

January 28, 2020

2:00 pm - 4:30 pm

Oregon State University - Cascades – Tykeson Hall, Room 111

Presentations by:

Andrea Lampert, J.D., Lead Attorney and Center Coordinator for Trafficking Law Center

Erin Kevin, Victim Specialist, FBI – Portland Division

Amy Martin, Program Manager, at:project

Elizabeth Renteria Holden, Program Manager, Deschutes County Behavioral Health

Human Trafficking through a Legal Lens: This program will provide an overview of human trafficking and the various legal needs of human trafficking survivors. Topics covered include:

- Human trafficking overview, and overview of state and federal human trafficking laws
- Overview of the legal needs of human trafficking survivors, and the Trafficking Law Center
- Overview of trauma, its effect on the brain and how trauma can affect victims' ability to access justice
- Overview of why providing an environment welcoming and supportive to trauma survivors is necessary for access to justice

Breaking Barriers for Survivors of Trafficking: This program discusses empowering survivors to access systems through comprehensive needs assessment and case management, which supports and builds momentum in their healing process. Participants will learn how to:

- Identify the types of barriers survivors face in accessing systems
- Evaluate and assess the needs of survivors through their recovery process
- Understand the components of strong case management
- Evaluate how meeting the needs of survivors breaks down barriers to accessing systems.

This training is free but registration is required. Please email Monica at: mdesmond@jbarj.org

Oregon State University
Cascades

